

David Tague Bio

Started teaching both highland and SCD in 1976. Performed with several demonstration teams and the highlight of that experience was The Glen Lomond dancers doing a ten city tour of Western Canada. Members of the team included Simon Scott, Mary Murray and Ron Wallace. Created my own performance group, The Strathleven Scottish Dancers and performed all over Southern California doing highland and country dance at Disneyland and several amusement parks.

Became a workshop teacher and taught at several US and Canadian venues including Toronto, Boston, New York, San Francisco and Vancouver and loved every bit of it. A real joy working with dancers that make up this amazing family.

Thrilled to be asked to teach at London after retiring and returning to Michigan. Have taught highland and country dancing for over forty years and am currently a Scottish Official Board Highland Dance adjudicator.

Privileged to have taught alongside many well-known teachers such as June Shore, Bob Blackie, Betty Thompson and Ruth Jappy.
